COLORED OLEO BILL GOES TO SENATE

City Asks Opinions on One-Way Traffic

Council Holds Up Approval

Measure Would Boost Revenue

City council last night heard the last part of the reading of the new traffic code, but delayed final action "to give the public a chance to inspect the ordinance and make suggestions and complaints."

The ordinance, recodifying all city traffic laws, incorporates a provision that makes two main north-south streets and two main east-west streets one-way.

It also contains provisions which restrict parking to one side of three major streets, make pedestrians liable to traffic laws and requires all taxi drivers to be fingerprinted.

By including all state traffic laws in the code, the city will collect all fines for convictions under their authority. It has been estimated that city income will be increased by about $10,000 annually.

The reading of the second part of the ordinance took one hour and 55 minutes. The total reading time for the 96 pages, part of which was read last week totaled three hours and 55 minutes.

Michael Mihalick, chairman of the traffic committee, said "the committee feels that this is a very important piece of legislation.

GIVE 3 READINGS

"We are intentionally reading it three times (the second and third time by title only) to give the public a chance to voice suggestions and complaints.

"The traffic committee will be glad to hear them," he added.

His sentiments were echoed by Councilmen Thomas B. Wright and Harry Hollingsworth. Wright added that "although the bill is not a cure for the entire problem, it certainly is a step in the right direction."

Streets in the one-way street program are North Diamond, North Main, and East and the latter from Penn avenue to West Fourth and Fifth streets, Ashland road. Main and Diamond streets will be one-way from South Park street to Olive street.

The provisions of the one-way section will not go into effect until the East Fifth street extension is acquired from the Mansfield Telephone company.

Action for that land is pending in common pleas court. The city took the question into court after the telephone company repeatedly refused to sell.

Parking will be restricted, by terms of the code, on one side of the following streets between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.:

Wood street, between Marion to Glessner avenues; Walnut street, between West Second street and West Fifth street, and Marion avenue, between Park avenue west and the city limits.

Reds Arrest U. S. Author

MOSCOW —(U.P.)—Anna Louise Strong, 64, a pro-Soviet American writer for more than a generation, has been arrested as a spy by Soviet security police and will be deported immediately, the Soviet press announced today.

The announcement said she had managed to slip into the Soviet union "through the negligence of certain officials dealing with foreign relations."

"The well-known spy, American newspaperwoman A. L. Strong, who penetrated the Soviet union as a result of the negligence of certain officials dealing with foreign relations, was arrested yesterday by organs of state security," the announcement said.

"Mrs. Strong was incriminated in spying and sabotage activity against the Soviet union. It is reported she will be deported beyond the confines of the Soviet union within a few days."

PREDICTS EARLY SEASON

CLEVELAND — (AP) — An early opening to the lake shipping season was predicted today by the skipper of the coast guard ice-breaker Mackinaw, Commander H. J. Doebler.

Tax Warning Issued By Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON—(AP)—If you paid a doctor or lawyer or dentist or house servant more than $600 during 1948, you'd better tip off the federal tax people by midnight tonight.

That is the deadline for filing "information returns" (Form 1099) advising the Internal Revenue bureau about payments you made that didn't have withholding tax deductions.

The bureau checks this information against the income tax returns of those who got the payments. Sometimes it catches up in this way with tax chiselers who try to hide out income.

Business Lukewarm On One-Way

Parking Called Major Trouble

Mansfield businessmen are only lukewarm toward the proposal to establish one-way traffic on four major downtown thoroughfares.

The plan involves Main street from South Park street to Olive street, Diamond from South Park to the Erie tracks, Fourth and Fifth streets from Ashland road to Penn avenue.

There was divided opinion among the business representatives interviewed today by the News-Journal. Some of the businessmen liked the one-way plan. Others said it was all right if it wasn't in effect on their streets, and some said plain "no."

The traffic plan is included in an ordinance now before council.

One Main street store manager said: "I wouldn't like to see it on Main street, but I do think it would be a good thing on Diamond and Walnut streets. It would hurt business on Main street. I think if they would cut out the parking on Main street, we wouldn't need one-way traffic."

Another was not too much in favor of the proposed code, although he admitted he hadn't given the matter much thought.

"However," he said. "I think it would hurt business."

A business man on North Main north of Fourth street, said it wouldn't affect his business.

No Water, Lucas School Gets Holiday

The 400 pupils of Lucas school had an unexpected holiday today when trouble in the water line cut off the school's water supply.

Supt. of Schools W. S. Barger said the trouble was in the feeder line leading from the main to the school.

He said he hoped that repairs could be made in order to hold classes tomorrow. Municipal water department workers were attempting today to find the source of the trouble.

Barger said the water to the school was turned off at 4:30 p. m. yesterday when workers were making repairs. The water line was turned on about 7 p. m., but no water flowed through the line to the school, Barger said.

Seek to Write Austrian Treaty

LONDON—(U.P.)—The west renewed its fight today to reduce Russian demands on the Austrian economy.

The issue arose as the Big Four deputy foreign ministers met for the fifth time in their current attempt to write an Austrian peace treaty.

The Soviets seek extensive oil concessions in Austria as well as payments of $150,000,000 in American money during the next six years.

Asks Old Age Bonus

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Every Ohio old-age pensioner in Ohio today would get an annual Christmas bonus of $10 under a bill introduced in the house by Rep. John Smith (D-Summit).

DOG-TIRED—There's a lot of walking going on in Philadelphia during the transit strike, and many dogs are getting tired, even on picket duty. Transport workers are on strike for more pay, taxicab drivers walked out today in support of the strike, and the whole city's 'hoofing it.'

Cab Drivers In Walkout

Two-Way Squeeze Hits Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)— Philadelphia's 3,000,000 daily commuters were caught in a two-way travel squeeze today when taxicab drivers walked off their jobs in the fifth day of the city-wide transit tie-up.

Most of the 3,500 drivers for the Yellow Cab company turned in their vehicles shortly after last midnight, leaving thousands of Philadelphians stranded in the center-city area and dependent on train service.

A company spokesman termed the walkout "unauthorized". The drivers had previously threatened to strike at midnight, but their union leaders announced a postponement until Thursday.

Charles Pirolli, president of Local 156, AFL Taxicab Drivers union, blamed the work stoppage on "a combination of things." In a membership vote last week, the drivers threatened the walkout in support of new contract demands that included a $1.20 hourly wage guarantee or a 50 per cent commission on gross receipts.

The two strikes left residents in the metropolitan area with only a few cabs, private automobiles, trucks and trains for transportation.

U. S. Will Ignore Recall of Aide

BUDAPEST —(U.P.)— The United States probably will ignore the Hungarian communist government's request that assistant military attache Lt. Col. Peter J. Kopcsak be recalled, it was reported reliably today.

Informants said the U. S. preferred to have the Hungarians themselves request Kopcsak to leave, as they threatened to do in a note of last Saturday.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED

COLUMBUS — (INS) — William Blanton, 69, is in serious condition today in St. Francis hospital, Columbus, after being struck down by an automobile late yesterday.

Clash Over Code

Steel House Stirs Building Argument

A battle between local authorities and Elmer Hedeen, Mansfield distributor for the prefabricated, all-steel Lustron homes, broke into the open today.

Hedeen is putting up one of the prefabricated buildings on Sunset boulevard in South Boulevards, but has run into strong opposition from Mansfield plumbers and Fire Chief L. J. Steele.

Chief Steele is opposed to a certain type of electrical wiring used in the five-room structure.

He claimed that the "BX" cable is inferior and cannot be used in any Mansfield homes by virtue of the electrical code, and he refuses to make an exception in the case of the all-metal house.

"If we let one builder use it, they all will want to use it and I don't consider it safe enough," he said.

Hedeen claimed that an exception could be made permitting the particular type of cable to be used only in all metal homes, adding that they are fireproof inasmuch as they are made of metal.

Chief Steele countered by saying that the danger of electrocution exists and a fire could start in the furniture.

The master plumbers association and the plumbing inspector are also stumbling blocks. They object to a certain type of plumbing fixture used to connect the building with the sewer main.

Hedeen said the multiple fitting is prefabricated and can be attached in a short period of time. Under the old method, such a fitting was assembled piece by piece at the scene and the installation time was much longer.

He claimed that the plumbers are opposed to it because they will lose money because of the shorter installation time.

Despite that fact that the fire chief is opposed to the wiring and has said he will not approve it as a safe dwelling house and despite opposition from the plumbers, Hedeen said he is going ahead with the construction work.

"To meet their specification, the price of the house would have to be upped by $2,500," he said.

The building, equipped with radiant ceiling heating is designed to sell for $8,700. It is made in Columbus and shipped to Mansfield for assembly.

When Hedeen started construction, South Boulevards was not a part of the city of Mansfield and therefore not subject to local rules. He ran into trouble when the annexation was made last year.

Hedeen claimed that he has no opposition in the other counties and will begin construction there as soon as the South Boulevards unit is completed and the 60-day inspection period is over.

Vet Pension Awarded OK

Committee Passes Compromise Bill

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The House Veterans committee today approved a bill providing $90-a-month pensions for all veterans of World Wars I and II at the age of 65.

The committee's measure was a compromise of a proposal by Chairman Rankin (D-Miss) to start a $60-a-month pensions at the age of 60.

The bill also sets up pensions for non-service connected disabilities ranging from $20 a month to $90 for total disability, and $120 where an attendant is required.

Gray estimated the cost would be around $2,000,000,000 the first year and said costs would go up annually thereafter.

Land Trade Studied In State Assembly

COLUMBUS — (UP) — A bill to exchange a parcel of state-owned land in the city of Ravenna for land on which the State Highway department mistakenly constructed a building was before the Ohio House of Representatives today.

Expansion Of Fair Proposed

Board Requests Ground Survey

The Richland county fair board last night took the first positive action to bring a senior fair back to Richland county.

Following lengthy debate, the board voted to ask Ohio State university to send specialists here to survey the fairground on Springmill street with a view to expansion and improvements.

The motion was offered by Dwight W. McCullough. The planning committee of which he is a member was instructed to contact the university, have the survey carried out, then report back to the board. Other members of the committee are Arthur Mellick and Charles Oberlin.

McCullough said he had conferred with the owners of two parcels of land containing about 38 acres north of the fairground about acquiring the property for a larger site, but action to buy land was deferred pending completion of the survey.

Thomas Sheppard, a board member, gave a report on the meeting of the Ohio Fair Manager's association and the State Department of Agriculture last month in Columbus.

"Fairs should place more emphasis on cooperation and education of city folk, especially the boys and girls," Sheppard said. Encourage garden clubs, hobby clubs, and camera clubs to show at the fair and to hold contests. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts should be represented.

"Provide good clean fun for all youth such as amateur shows, singing and instrument playing contests—folk dancing, archery and games of skill," Sheppard continued.

QUITS BOARD

The board accepted the resignation of Rev. Paul Beighley, of Lexington, who said he soon would leave the county.

Chosen to represent veterans' groups was Mervin Grau, a member of several veterans organizations who was recommended by the American Legion.

County Agent C. N. McGrew said March 8 has been set as the date for the banquet for 4-H club advisors in appreciation of their efforts.

Charles Henry, fairground caretaker, reported that the county commissioners had set up $1,000 for repairs and renovation at the fairground, in addition to the $2,800 mandatory under law.

President L. L. Rinehart presided at the meeting. He said the board would be guided in its attempt to set up a Senior fair by the attitude of the people in the county and city and by that of leaders of industry here.

Board members met at the First Methodist church. Their families were guests. Refreshments were served.

Under $20,000 Bond

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Herbert Hoover Fisher, 19-year-old bandit suspect who fled police hospital guards and then surrendered voluntarily 13 hours later, was under $20,000 bond at Columbus today, awaiting action of the Franklin county grand jury.

Raging Winds Hit Ohio

(Compiled From Wire Services)

Winds of near-tornado velocity whipped over the Hamilton-Middletown area early today ripping the roofs off of several buildings, killing livestock, and tearing down trees, wires and utility poles.

The damage was as yet unestimated but it was anticipated it would run into scores of thousands of dollars.

The most damage was reported from the farm of John Mehl, who had much of his livestock killed when some of his farm buildings were blown down between 3 and 4 a. m.

The weather bureau at Cincinnati reported winds of up to 47 miles per hour and said they apparently grew much stronger as they moved north across the state.

In the West, fresh ground blizzards put a virtual halt to road travel over storm-battered southern Wyoming and southern Idaho as flood dangers mounted higher in the blizzard-stricken areas of Nebraska.

BLIZZARD STRIKES

A blizzard which swept over Boise, Ida., was the heaviest local storm in 17 years, the weather bureau said. Six inches of snow fell in seven hours last night.

No heavy snow was reported in the Wyoming storm—but ground blizzards—strong winds swirling the huge piles of snow over newly-cleared roads and rail lines—continued.

In Mansfield, 1.05 inches of rain fell as high winds and lightning swept the city during the night. No damage was reported from the storm.

Temperatures ranged from 52 degrees at midnight to 50 degrees at 5 a. m. but the weatherman predicts colder weather for tonight and tomorrow.

Hurl Charge Of Slavery

Western Powers Flay Russians

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. — (UP) — The western powers opened a hard-hitting propaganda drive in the United Nations today based on charges that Russia has enslaved 8,000,000 to 14,000,000 persons in slave labor camps.

The United States asked the UN economic and social council to recommend an international inquiry into forced labor conditions allegedly prevalent in nations of the Soviet block.

Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp of the United States challenged Russia to permit such an investigation if, as she contends, charges of slavery "behind the Iron Curtain" are untrue.

The western countries apparently planned an all-out debating session aimed at arousing world opinion against the secrecy with which Russia has shrouded the fate of millions of German war prisoners—and of other millions of Russian citizens.

Measure Wins 4-1 Approval

Permits Sale, Manufacture

COLUMBUS —(INS)— An initiated bill to permit the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio was recommended for passage today by a four-to-one vote of the Senate Commerce and Labor committee.

The oleo vote was taken after several hearings on the bill, which was presented to the legislature by petitions circulated among voters.

The committee, before recommending the bill, eliminated a provision which would ban manufacture of colored oleo from any but "domestic" oils. Even the sponsors of the measure admitted the provision was discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional.

However, the elimination could mean future trouble. Under the initiative law, the bill must be passed as submitted by the legislature within four months, or the circulators of the petitions may, if they desire, circulate new petitions to place the matter directly before the voters.

VOTED 4 TO 1

Sen. Clingan Jackson (D-Youngstown) was the only senator voting against the measure. For the bill were Sens. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Cleveland), Robert Ragan (D-Toledo), Orval Whitaker (D-Canton), and William Deddens (R-Cincinnati).

Sen. Edward Welch, D., Dayton, did not vote when he saw that enough votes to recommend the bill had been cast.

Senate Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney, D., Cleveland, said the bill would come before the Senate itself next week, probably Tuesday.

The House Industry and Labor committee, meanwhile, resumed its consideration of the bill.

The proposal passed the Senate during the last General assembly but was killed in the House.

In other legislative developments, the House Agriculture committee heard proponents of a measure to abolish the state fairgrounds relocation commission. It will hear opponents of the measure next week.

Green Flays T-H Measure

WASHINGTON — (AP) — AFL President William Green said today the Taft-Hartley act is "impracticable, unworkable and destructive of the common elemental rights of labor." He urged its prompt repeal.

"The resentment of labor in the United States to the Taft-Hartley law," Green told the Senate Labor committee, "is an uncompromising and rigid as was the opposition of our forefathers to Great Britain when it imposed upon them government without representation."

The Senate committee is holding hearings on a bill offered by the Truman administration to replace the Republican-sponsored act which Congress passed in June 1947.

Green said the American Federation of Labor likes its general objectives. But he said several features could be sharpened to the benefit of organized labor.

Hose Runners In Marathon

Stockings Go Pff-f-ft On Jacksonville Gams

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—(AP)—A fantastic run was reported here yesterday, and it wasn't at a racetrack or on a bank. It was up and down milady's legs.

Hundreds of women pedestrians in downtown Jacksonville said their nylon hose simply went to pieces while they were wearing them.

It was just like that. You'd be walking along when all at once—rippity-rip—there it was, that bane of feminine chic and charm, a run in your stocking.

Health department officials took a few looks and notes, and went into action. Dr. W. W. Rogers, the city health officer, said certain gases that mixed with air and smoke might have reacted with the nylon fibers and caused the sudden disintegration. He wasn't exactly sure, though.

"I am not prepared at this time to say exactly what caused the situation," he said as he listened to feminine complaints yesterday. "It may be several days before we have anything to announce."

He called on chemists at the University of Florida to aid in solving the riddle.

Reading, Pa., got in on the act by saying it was all old stuff. Nylon hose had disintegrated there about a year ago, a chemist at a knitting mill said. He blamed the calamity on fumes discharged from a chemical plant.

Fumes from such strong acids as sulphuric and hydrochloric acid cause quick disintegration of nylon, the Reading chemist said.

At Wilmington, Del., a spokesman for one of the country's largest nylon producers declared, however, that he'd never heard of anything like the quandary at Jacksonville.

Speaking for E. I. DuPont de Nemours, the spokesman said wholesale disintegration was something new.

"This situation sounds fantastic to us," he added, "but we will certainly try to find out everything we can about it."

Meanwhile, Jacksonville hosiery shops and counters were doing a fabulous business in replacements.

Cynical Bosses Worst Enemy Of Unionism In United States

IT IS A prominent fault of our unionism, and I think it will be fatal to that institution yet, that, from the top to the poor insensate jellies of the so-called rank and file, no person ever thinks to suggest even in sarcasm, that the officers of unions should be a sort of priesthood of consecrated men renouncing personal advantage and vanity.

This selfishness and avarice dominates the personalities and conduct of all the prominent unioneers who have stifled the faith of the membership in unionism as an ideal and repulsed the millions of others who would have been won to unions otherwise.

The feeling of the loyal rank and file consequently is only a selfish and consciously predatory desire for advantage over other elements of the community, even with the knowledge that such advantages are undeserved.

Bad or cynical leadership corrupts with its own badness the spirit of the membership. I sometimes receive letters from true rank-and-filers sneering at the proposition that union officers should be held to a strict code and frankly admiring the likes of Dan Tobin, the president of the teamsters, not for anything that he has done for labor but for his success in providing for Dan Tobin and his sons at the expense of the workers.

IN ALL my experience with the union rackets, I have never known either William Green or Philip Murray, the two great boss-presidents, to take any action against any crook for his crookedness.

Green's excuse always has been that he has no constitutional right to invade the autonomy of one of his component member unions to discredit and drive out some outrageous criminal.

George Scalise and George Browne, of the building service workers and the theatrical, stage and movie employes, were two conspicuous examples, but only two of a hundred that I could name and have named in the past. Green befriended them against the working people.

Murray's excuse seems to have been about the same. He has been a little less flagrantly guilty of indifference because his authority was minor when he was in the A. F. of L., and racketeering has been a secondary problem of the C. I. O.

Murray's worst problem in the CIO has been communists. They persecuted the rank and file without mercy in many of his most important unions, embracing, altogether, about half of his subjects.

Recently, by some unexplained treachery against the communists by a small group of old fellow-travelers, Murray has been able to break the communists' power.

But I have to insist that this was a course of expediency, not principle, because for years and years Murray not only tolerated those communists who are now so loathesome but actively took their part against more honest men who said they should be driven out.

Unionism for the professionals is a ferocious, dog-eat-dog business. They form cliques but they have no loyalties and they must always be on guard against dirty work It is very much like organization politics, whose vaunted loyalties produce heart-break and tragedy all the time.

Not greedy employers nor a hostile press but selfish, cynical boss unioneers have been the worst enemies of unionism in the United States.

Court Puts Two On Probation

Four Others Win Continuances

Two of six defendants who changed their pleas to guilty in Richland County Common Pleas court yesterday afternoon were placed on probation. Cases of the other four were continued.

The defendants had been indicted by the January term grand jury.

Howard Ware, 30, of 262 North Main street, charged with carrying concealed weapons, was placed on five years probation.

Ware was arrested by police Dec. 5 Carrying a loaded 38 caliber pistol, Prosecutor Harold Lutz told the court. Attorney Robert W. Lett, representing the defendant said that Ware had received the gun just an hour before from a man who had borrowed $8 as a "pledge" that the money would be repaid. Lett said Ware's employer told him Ware had been a reliable and hard worker.

Ware had no previous record and Lutz said he had no objection to the court's placing him on probation.

Placed on probation for three years was Marion Steinhelfer, 35, of Galion. Steinhelfer was charged with embezzlement of $58 in cashing a check for a vacuum cleaner he had sold. Lutz told the court that Steinhelfer had made restitution before the grand jury met and indicted him.

BACK ON JOB

Attorney William H. Calhoun, representing the defendant, said Steinhelfer had been employed by the company for 10 years and he had financial difficulties and had no intention of withholding funds. He said Steinhelfer was back working for the same firm, and that his employer had gone his bond. Lutz said Steinhelfer was a good worker and had an excellent background. Lutz said he had no objection to probation for the defendant. Both defendants had no previous records.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch continued the cases of four others to Friday at 1 p. m. for a further investigation of their backgrounds by Probation Officer Ralph Hughes.

The four are Mrs. Bernice Janet Mae Currens, 31, of 81 Waring avenue, indicted on charges of breaking and entering and carrying concealed weapons; Talmadge Gene Mullins, 20, of Mifflin, charged with breaking and entering, and Walter Leroy Phillips, 30, of 335 Cedar street, charged with breaking and entering.

Mrs. Currens was represented by Attorney Homer G. Clark, Bishop and Mullins by Attorney Lydon H. Beam and Phillips by Attorney George V. Sauter.

Steve L. Keiser jr., 19, entered a plea of innocence when arraigned on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

Keiser, who was indicted by the grand jury secretly since he had not been in custody, returned here voluntarily when he was served with the warrant at Chicago.

Injured in the collision were Joseph Pennypacker, 17, of 159½ North Walnut street, and Alexander Greer, 365 West Sixth street.

Pennypacker, a passenger in a car driven by Clifford J. Flannigan, 666 South Main street, was admitted to General hospital after receiving contusions of the forehead and right knee. Greer, driver of the other car, was treated for lacerations of the forehead and released.

Police said the mishap occurred at 2:25 p. m. yesterday. Flannigan said he was traveling north on Rowland and Greer said he was going east on West Sixth.

Escaping injury when struck by cars yesterday were Frank Wright, 6, of 224½ North Mulberry street, and Mrs. Jerry Dent, 29, of 137 Willow street. The Wright child escaped injury at 12:40 p. m. when he was struck by a car driven by Ben Costell, 409 McPherson street. Costell told officers the child ran from between parked cars in front of 257 North Mulberry street.

Mrs Dent also escaped injury when struck by a car driven by John P. Klein, 255 Rae avenue, at 7 p. m. yesterday at North Main and West Third streets. Klein told police his windshield was steamed and that he didn't see the young woman until he had hit her.

OHIO FORECAST: Showers, windy and warm, turning colder west and north portions today, clearing and colder tonight, Wednesday partly cloudy and colder.

Settlement of Land Dispute Looms

Possibility of settlement out of court of the dispute between the city and the Mansfield Telephone company over the East Fifth street extension loomed today.

City Solicitor C. J. Kalbfleisch said the telephone company has asked him for an offer, stating the price which the city would be willing to pay for the 650-foot-long strip of land between Ashland road and Snyder street.

The scheduled condemnation proceedings were postponed until Feb. 23 in Common Pleas court yesterday at the request of the telephone company.

The piece of land in question is needed to put the one-way street program into effect and has been termed "essential" to relieve local traffic congestion by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

The telephone company has refused to sell, contending that it improved the land and the loss of the 30-foot right-of-way would destroy its frontage on Ashland road and therefore make the rest of the land useless.

Asks Land Transfer

A bill to transfer a triangular parcel of Armory land, on the Ashland road to the City of Mansfield, was under consideration today by the Ohio House of Representatives. The vacant land is owned by the state.

The bill, introduced by Rep C. L. Mitchell, of Richland county, was up for second reading and referral to the reference committee.

The tract of land is between the Ashland road and Ritter's Run. The triangular property is south of the Armory. It fronts 273 feet on Ashland road and the longest line from the road to the creek is 101 feet.

Mitchell told The News-Journal by telephone that the land is of no value to the state.

He said he felt it would be of benefit to the Ashland road and to the City of Mansfield, which can keep the property or sell it.

Tools Reported Taken From Parked Vehicle

Theft of $100 worth of tools from an auto parked on Orchard street was reported yesterday to police by Melvin Harnes, 55 Orchard street.

Harnes said his auto was parked in front of his home when the tools were taken from the trunk of the car.

TIMID OR CAUTIOUS?—

Then there is the case of the timid robbers. These shrinking brigands, two in number, were armed with all of the equipment of successful bandits — guns, masks and muffled voices. They waited until their victim put his car in the garage and then stuck him up in the time-honored manner. "Give us your money," they barked. The victim reached in his pocket and pulled out a handful of change venturing, "That's all I have." Both robbers were evidently non-plussed as they didn't make a move for the pocket money. So the victim, with inner quakings, turned his back and walked away. Today he says, "I'll never know how I got out from under." The true story happened in Lima last Friday night after the victim had visited relatives in Mansfield.

Shifting Of Staff Studied

Measure Given First Reading

An ordinance creating the position of traffic lieutenant in the police department was given a first reading at a meeting of city council last night.

Under terms of the ordinance, the number of patrolmen on the traffic squad would be cut from eight to seven and the number of lieutenants authorized for the police force would be upped from three to four.

There will be no additional personnel, but one officer will be in line for a promotion.

The action was taken following a request from Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

Harry Bowman, chairman of the salary committee, said he did not know whether a civil service examination would be required. The decision will rest with the civil service commission, he said.

ASKS BUS CHANGE

Council instructed the services safety director to contact Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc., about a change in the Hedges street route.

Councilman Nelson Swihart suggested, in the form of a resolution, that the route be changed as follows between April 1 and Oct. 1 of each year.

South on Hedges street to Diamond, northwest on Diamond street to Altamont avenue, south on Altamont avenue to Ford street, east on Ford street to Diamond, southeast on Diamond street to the end of the line, and return as usual up Diamond street to Adams street.

This change during the summer months is being requested to allow easier access to the cemetery for those desiring to visit it, Swihart said.

This route is being followed by the bus company on Sundays and holidays, but council wants it incorporated in the daily route.

Council approved an action of the recreation board which upped the salary of the director of the department of recreation from $3,600 to $3,800 annually.

Laughter Cure For Neurosis, Humorist Tells Foremen

SHELBY — Approximately 260 members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremans' club heard David K. Stewart, Cleveland humorist and philosopher, give an entertaining address entitled "Head, Heart and Funny-Bone" at a dinner meeting at the Lutheran church last night.

Stewart set his audience at ease with his first philosophical remark that "the brain can absorb only as much as the seat can endure."

Stewart stressed the three qualifications that make a happy successfull man intelligence, controlled emotions and humor.

In discussing intelligence, he brought forth bursts of laughter when he described the brain as the greatest unemployed area in the world since only 10 per cent of its capabilities were being utilitzed.

He prescribed laughter as a cure for the neurosis that exists in the world today.

Robert Guthrie, chairman of arrangements, provided a sextet composed of the following Shelby High school pupils: Jane Swartz, Joan Swartz, Louise Dewey, Sandra Jones, Dorothy Emerson and Rosemary Ebersole. Martha Laughbaum accompained at the piano. There also was high school saxophone quartet composed of Roger Pugh, Ed Hawk, Erlinda Leverett and Dorinda Randall.

The dinner was served by the Ladies Aid of the church. James Root, president of the club, introduced the speaker. Elizabeth Ann Gooding and Anna Lee Irey played accordion numbers during the dinner.

Lorain High Battles In Tyger Lair

Although Lorain high school has covered a rocky road this basketball season, the Steelers could pry Mansfield Senior high off its lofty perch tonight in the Tyger lair.

The Bengals have copped 12 of 17 games this season and 18 straight on the home court while Lorain has won only 5 of 16 contests. However, Coach Ed Cinniger's Steeler lineup will feature three youngsters who started against Mansfield last year. Cinniger lost two other lettermen at the mid-season graduation.

GAME COMPARISONS

Comparative scores point towards a good game. Lorain defeated Bellevue, 47 to 43, while the latter team knocked off Mansfield, 37 to 44. Elyria defeated Lorain twice but the Tygers took Elyria, 49 to 30. Lima Central rapped Mansfield, 59 to 49, and edged Lorain, 47 to 43.

Senior high has been looking better each time out while Lorain has been losing the close ones. Cinniger's crew lost seven of its 11 games by two points or less.

However, the Tygers will have a definite height advantage. Only two of the Lorain first six stand over six foot. The Lorain lettermen are John Rybarszyk, 6-2; Frank Martin, 5-10 and Roland Horn, 5-9. Martin flipped in nine field goals and three fouls for 21 points as the Steelers bowed to Mansfield, 50 to 46, last year.

UP FROM RESERVES

The other "regulars" were all members of the Lorain reserve team in 1948. They are: Don Fritz, 6-2; Al Pena, 5-9 and Bob Telatnik, 5-11. Fritz had 19 points as Lorain lost to the Baby Bengals, 52 to 39.

Junior Jimmy Anderson raised his Bengal point average to 13.5 last week and has a total of 229 points. Norb Shibinski has 184 and Paul Ferguson, 110.

Pair of Regulars Ink '49 Contracts With Cleveland

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Two more regulars—out-fielder Dale Mitchell and third baseman Ken Keltner—were inside the tribe's wigwam today.

But, with just two weeks remaining before training camp opening at Tucson, Ariz., more than half the Cleveland Indians still had not signed 1949 contracts.

The Indians announced today that Mitchell, infielder Ray Boone and pitcher Dick Rozek had returned their signed contracts. Tribe president Bill Veeck signed Keltner last night in Milwaukee at "an increase over last year."

Earlier yesterday pitcher Leroy (Satchel) Paige announced in Kansas City that he had agreed to "a pretty good contract."

That made 18 signed contracts for Veeck with 21 to go. The boss of the 1948 world champions was enroute to Cincinnati today to talk with A. B. (Happy) Chandler, commissioner of baseball. The signing of Artie Wilson, loudly protested by the New York Yankees, possibly will be part of the discussion.

Three Westie Games

40 Baseball Men Register

Some 40 area baseball coaches and managers will attend the Mansfield baseball school tomorrow at Senior high school.

Scouts Bill Bradley of the Cleveland Indians and Jack McLain, New York Giants, will lecture at the school.

Here's Important Point to Make

By FRITZ HOWELL
(Ohio Sports Editor)

COLUMBUS — Thousands of points were pushed through the basket last week by Ohio's 1165 high school cage teams, but the most star-spangled one was chalked up by Walt Anderson of Akron South.

The loose-jointed kid, who came to the Rubber City only two weeks ago from Pennsylvania, was playing his first game for the Cavaliers.

South, one of Class A's few unbeaten teams, had won 12 straight. But with 29 seconds to go the score was South 29, Barberton 29.

Then one of the Magics fouled Anderson, only substitute to take the floor for the Akronites. Anderson stepped up to the free throw line, dunked the ball through the bucket—and there was South's 13th in a row.

Most scintillating personal performance of the week, of course, was the 70-point spree staged by Yorkville's pint-sized Ken Alessi in the 103-69 romp over Shadyside. That lifted Ken's 26-game total to 927, a 34.15 average. If 70 points isn't a state record, sue us.

Findlay's Class A champions rolled right on to their 14th win in 15 starts with a 61-38 victory over Fremont Ross—but the boys who have seen the Trojans in action aren't convinced Coach Carl Bachman's crew is as fast and fancy as the one which copped the crown. Graduation eliminated most of the 1947-48 talent.

Another fine scoring spree—37 points—was racked up by Tom Frericks of Minster, and it was good enough to end new Knoxville's 16-game winning streak by 55 to 52. Lakeview of Logan county, with 19 straight, bowed to Zanesfield 50-49 in the opening round of the county tournament.

Still rolling along the Class B victory trail, however, are Walnut Creek with 20 straight, North Baltimore and Conesville with 17, and Salem of Wyandot county with 20.

In Class A, along with Akron South, are Garfield Heights with 17 in a row, Rocky River with 13, Lakewood with 12, and Cleveland Central with 11. Indications are the Cleveland clubs, participating for the first time in the state tournament, might cut quite a figure in the championship race.

Orlie Grable Tops Maple Busters With 609 Series

Only two bowlers in eight leagues wrote their names on the mythical "600" honor roll last night.

Tops of the pin-busters was Orlie Grable, the cigar-smoking pace-setter of the Richland A league. He tossed games of 202, 214, and 193 for the Richland Recreation team to compile a 609 series, 12 pins better than his nearest competitor.

Main Cigar 5 Still In Race For 'B' Crown

Main Cigar remained the only competition for Mansfield Tire in the second half American league basketball race after the undefeated Tiremen disposed of Westinghouse last night.

Westinghouse was eliminated from the race as it fell 55-30 in one of the three games on the card at Senior high school. It was its second defeat.

Meanwhile, Main Cigar remained in the running by downing Reese Optical, 41-35, and Shorty's News won its first game over Ideal Electric, 26-22. Bob Meeker had 20 points for Reese.

John Simpson Junior High Blasts Union

By TOM M'CULLOCH

John Simpson junior high played the last warm-up before the "big game" yesterday as it slipped by a tough Union aggregation by a 29-22 margin.

Simpson meets Johnny Appleseed for the city championship Thursday at Senior High.

The score was close in yesterday's battle as Union led 7-6 at the end of the half. After the intermission Simpson showed its ball-control ability to hold the opponents to four points in each of the last two stanzas.

NO CAN HIT

Simpson made a poor showing from the foul line as it made only nine of 26 gratis shots while Union made six of 12.

The Bulldog reserves won a thriller from the Union freshmen, 31-30, as Jackie Jaynes caged the winning basket with eight seconds to go.

Crawford Tournament Opens With 2 Games

BUCYRUS — A two-game program starting at 7:30 p.m. will open play in the Crawford county basketball tournament at Bucyrus high school gym tonight.

Mt. Zion and New Washington hold the honor of meeting in the first game of the tourney, Lykens and Tiro take the floor for the second game.

Madison 5 Is Host To Railroaders

Breaking of a four-game losing streak and avenging of a month-old 44-41 defeat will be the goal of the Madison Rams when they entertain Willard in a basketball game tonight on the Madison court.

Madison has lost to Shelby, Crestline, Lexington and Bucyrus in succession since upsetting Columbus Linden-McKinley and now has a seven won-nine lost record.

END HOME SEASON

However, Coach Blaine Dowler has been working the team hard for the past week, particularly the second five, and hopes to have them ready to end their home season with a victory. After tonight Madison has only road games at Loudonville Friday and Galion next week left on the schedule.

Big obstacle in tonight's encounter will be Big Jim Nowakonski, Willard's six-foot-seven center who ripped the nets for 23 points when the two teams met Jan. 4 at Willard. He is only a junior.

CHELSKI LEADS

Scoring averages released today show Ed Chelski still leading the Rams with 12.2 points per game while Jim Brightbill has creeped into second place.

The Rams are maintaining their fine foul-shooting record as every one of the top six men except Chelski is above the .500 mark.

Ohio State Upsets St. Louis, 68 to 60

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—Tippy Dye's Buckeyes stepped up the ladder again last night and took a lusty swing at the nation's No. 2 big gun in court circles, knocking over St. Louis 68-60 in Harry Truman's home state.

More than 10,000 shock-ridden souls watched as Bob Donham joined Dick Schnittker in a scoring spree which netted the paid 46 points. Donham, perhaps just to show Schnittker and Bob Raidiger they're not the only ones, popped in 24 counters.

Mad-scoring Schnittker slowed down to 22.

SECOND WOUND

The Billikens were rocked back on their well-traveled heels by a sparked-up OSU squad which inflicted the second wound in an otherwise flawless 18-game season for the southerners.

The Oklahoma Aggies, right out of the hills in the early part of the season, drew first blood on St. Louis.

The Bucks bounded to their 11th victory in 16 tilts by sinking 26 field shots out of 58 attempts—just about as close as you can get to a 50 per cent record.

And in these times of inflation, 'tain't hay.

Three of Clemson college's varsity football coaches are graduates of the school—Covington McMillan, Walter Cox and Bob Jones.

Appleseeders Kayo Willard Scrubs, 40-27

WILLARD — Johnny Appleseed won its eighth game against four starts here yesterday by a 40-27 score over the tall Willard reserves.

Appleseed trailed at the half, 14-12, and held only a 25-22 lead at the end of the third quarter. In the fourth period, however, the Pioneers' speed began to tell on the bigger Willard cagers and Appleseed rolled up the score.

The Willard freshmen won the preliminary by a 30-22 score.

Just Retire and Come Home, Joe, and Things Will Be OK

MEXICO CITY — (INS) — Mrs. Joe Louis declared today that her heavyweight champion husband can end their separation by hanging up his gloves and standing by his often announced intention to retire.

The former Marva Trotter told the editor of the Mexico City newspaper, Novedades, that she is seeking a divorce because the brown bomber is always "traveing around," she added.

"Joe goes from one city to another. I hardly ever see him and I couldn't follow him on all his trips—although I would have liked to—because I have to take care of our children."

The divorce decree which she is seeking in Mexico City will become final in ten days.

However, Mrs. Louis was quoted in the paper as saying that she will be willing to remarry the heavyweight champ when he "abandoned his traveling around."

Gene Fekete Joins State Grid Staff

COLUMBUS — (INS) — On paper, Ohio State football coach Wes Fesler was half through picking his staff today, but actually it wasn't quite that simple.

Braves Ask Marv To Take Big Cut

SEATTLE — (AP) — Marv Rickert, who replaced the injured Jeff Heath of Boston in last fall's world series, disclosed today he had been offered a cut in salary for the 1949 season.

"Cut?" he snorted. "It's an amputation."

Rickert said he had returned his third unsigned contract to the Boston Braves. The best figure offered to date, he said, was $1,500 less than he received last year with the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association.

Penn Auto 5 Defeated By Two Points

Ohio Sport Center, first round champions, is the new 1948-49 City A basketball league titleholder.

Veteran Jim Tolles' two last-minute long shots enabled the Sport Center aggregation to edge Penn Auto-Sporting Goods last night on the John Simpson junior high floor, 43 to 41. The Penn team was second round champs.

Urschel Insurance had won the championship last year.

JUST CAN'T HIT

Inability to hit from the court and from the free throw line lost the game for Penn as the Auto team outscored the winners from the field, 15 to 14. However Sport Center dropped in 15 of 22 free tosses and Penn could make only 11 of 27.

Sport Center led at the quarter, 11 to 8 and at the half, 26 to 14. Penn sliced the margin to 34-25 as the final heat opened. The losers then scored eight straight points to get back in the game, 34 to 33.

A trade of free throws gave the Sports a 36-34 lead but Ollie Cline and Sam Roberts hit gratis shots to tie it up as the contest went into the final two minutes. Jack Elliott's left-handed push shot registered for Sport Center but Roberts again was successful from the foul line.

TWO "MONEY" SHOTS

Tolles hit a foul but Cline knotted the score with a one-hander. Then came the first of Tolles two "money" shots. Roberts connected on a pivot to knot the score but Tolles came through again with 25 seconds left to win. He was the top scorer with 14 points.

In the basketball preliminary Frankie Mitsch's Corner Store won over the Home Materials Lumberjacks, 45 to 28. Mitsch's led by quarters, 13 to 10, 25 to 18 and 31 to 22.

Two girls' all-star volleyball team put on an exhibition between games.

WHO'S ON "FIRST"?
(You Are!)

The answer is, you are on "first." The moment you phone this office, you are on "first"; and believe me, one of my staff is going to "connect for the circuit" to bring you home. The lack of a good batting average salesman in this office will not be tolerated. So don't worry about being stranded on the bases. We seldom "pop up"; we insist on good clean hits. If you are ready to "score," relax, you'll get your reward from any "exclusive" selection in our books; price ranges from $3,500 to $35,000, and from 3 rooms to 32 rooms. Brick, frame, stone or otherwise; locations that fit the dwellings. Grounds from lot size to several acres; income or residential. Never forget, our homes are "selected." For better homes at better prices—get on "first," we'll "drive you in."

Freedom Criterion Of Welfare

Living Slumps As Control Rises

The theory of our economic aid to Europe, according to Secretary of State Acheson, is that it is not possible for nations to enjoy political and moral freedom if they do not have a decent standard of life.

The nations of the European continent may be divided into three groups.

First, Western Europe, which includes France, Belgium, the Netherlands, the three Scandinavian countries, Austria and Switzerland.

Second, Eastern Europe, which includes Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia — and by force of circumstances, but not otherwise, as I shall point out later, Czechoslovakia and Finland.

Third, Mediterranean Europe, which includes Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece and Turkey. All have been under autocratic governments: Among them only Italy, after her twenty years of fascism, is now maintaining free institutions.

★

IT IS INTERESTING to compare the economic position of these three groups of nations. I am using figures, which I have regrouped, compiled by the Economic Commission for Europe. These figures are for the period between the two world wars — that is to say before the Russian incursion into the Eurpean continent. The figures show, therefore, the comparative wealth and poverty of the three groups at a time when Russian communism was still contained behind the Soviet frontier.

Take first, real income per person working in 1930. If the average for Europe as a whole was $469, the average for Eastern Europe (minus Czechslovakia and Finland) was $314. For Mediterranean Europe it was $370. For Western Europe, including Germany, it was $694. For Western Europe, minus Germany, it was $700.

Take second, the percentage of the population dependent on agriculture and fishing—in effect the proportion of the peasantry to the rest of the population. For Europe as a whole the average was 51 per cent. For Eastern Europe (again minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) it was 71 per cent. For Western Europe (both with and without Germany) it was 29 per cent. For Mediterranean Europe it was 59 per cent.

Thus in Eastern Europe seven out of ten, in Mediterranean Europe six out of ten, lived on the land. Now, third, take what the peasants got out of the land. If the index of production for Europe as a whole per person dependent on agriculture is rated at 100, Eastern Europe (minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) was 52; Western Europe was about 200, Mediterranean Europe about 59.

This means that a peasant in Western Europe got four times the yield that an Eastern European peasant got If we compare yield per hectare of land then in Western Europe it was 228, in Eastern Europe it was 76, in Mediterranean Europe it was 66. Thus, as compared with Western Europe, the countries which have been having fascism and communism for twenty year have had much more than twice as large a part of their people living on the land, and they got from the land about one-quarter as much yield.

Johnny Appleseed GAA Holds Annual Banquet

By JANET NEAL AND JANISE SMITH

The annual banquet and dance of the GAA was held in the school cafeteria. The cafeteria was decorated in Valentine theme.

A quiz show was the program at the banquet. The name of the show was "GAA, Be Seated". The script was written by the entertainment committee, Nelaura Orr, Jo-Ann Brunn, Cynthia Ackerman, Marianne Mosberg, and Sandra Theaker.

Navy blue seemed to be the popular color of the clothes worn by the girls. Corsages of roses, carnations and gardenias were worn by girls.

Harry Hostetler, a teacher here who was injured a month ago, is now back at school and is teaching. Students and teachers are all glad to have him back.

Home Room tournaments were played last week. Room 104 defeated 105 by a score of 15-8. Girls leading in points were Shirley Dunham, Nancy Ward and Charlene McGinty.

Many Boy Scout uniforms were seen this past week. This was because of National Boy Scout week.

There were two teachers visiting Appleseed last week. They were Miss Catherine Frick and Mrs. Mildred Bennett from Gambier, O.

Beekeepers Meet

Members of the Richland County Beekeepers association will meet in the jurors' room at the Richland county courthouse Thursday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Wade Kershner, program chairman, will outline the activites for the year. C. W. Vogel, president, will have charge of the meeting.

Kissel Named Manager at Ritz

Ray Kissel, 19, has been named manager of the Ritz theater, succeeding Robert G. Flohr, who has accepted an Army Ordinance post in Toledo.

Kissell has been assistant manager at the Ritz for the past two years. Prior to that time he was usher at the Ritz and Madison, Skirball theaters. For several years, Kissel has played in a local orchestra.

Revamped Liquor System, Repeal of City Income Tax Urged

New Bills Flood Ohio Assembly

Ferguson Act 'Cutting' Asked

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Revamp the state liquor system, knock out city payroll taxes, and change the Ferguson ban on public workers' strikes.

All this—and only the legislators know what else—was asked in a blizzard of bills hitting the General Assembly Monday.

The House lowered the boom on introduction of new laws last night. But 278 were received before deadline, boosting the total to 653 compared with 494 at the same time last session.

The Senate, which observes no time limit, received 52 bills for a total of 186 so far.

Chairmen of Senate and House Liquor Control committees offered bills to carry out Gov. Frank J. Lausche's plans to revamp the monopoly system.

Introduced by Sen. Robert C. Ragan (D-Lucas) and Rep. Howard W. Butz (D-Montgomery), they would allow:

Freezes on permits in various areas.

Court appeal by the director from liquor board reversals.

Enforcement staff increases from 101 to 150 men and examiners from 35 to 50.

Broad discretion in issuing licenses only to responsible applicants and require use of federal census in fixing population quotas.

Definitely ban liquor spots within 200 feet of churches, schools, libraries and play grounds.

Deposit of $25 with license applications to discourage "sampling."

Expenses of $6.50 a day for director and board members on duty outside Columbus, in addition to travel allowances.

Creation of nine-man commission to recommend liquor law revisions. Provides $25,000 for expenses of group.

The Senate liquor committee conducted its first hearing on an administration backed bill to increase cost of permits 50 per cent.

Sen. William M. Boyd (D-Cuyahoga) said he would offer an amendment at the next hearing to double the cost of licenses. Chairman Ragan said he had learned many permit holders approved the boost.

A proposal by Rep. James R. Joyce (D-Jefferson) would knock out payroll taxes in Toledo, Columbus, Springfield, Dayton and Youngstown.

Joyce lists himself as a labor organizer. Unions fought city income taxes and forced unsuccessful referendum votes on Columbus and Toledo levies. Portsmouth repealed its tax.

Several bills to lighten Ferguson act penalties for strikes by public employes were introduced. They also would set up bodies to hear grievances.

One measure was offered by three of the four representatives who switched at the last minute to give Democrats enough votes to pass a Ferguson repealer in the House last week.

Bill Would Pay $2,475 to Galion

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The city of Galion would be paid $2,475.29 under a bill authored by Rep. Carl Baker, D., Crawford, up before the Ohio House of Representatives today for second reading.

Payment would be made to satisfy a claim of the city that the state failed to pay that amount disbursed by the city prior to March, 1939, in payment made under protest under the unemployment compensation law.

Business Lukewarm About Proposal For One-Way Streets

"much one way or the other."

"Personally, I think it would be a good thing, but traffic doesn't affect our business too much."

A banker said, "I'm for it. We've needed it for some time."

HE OBJECTS

"I don't think it should be done on this street," an East Fourth street business man declared. "This is a main highway. I don't see how they can control traffic through Fourth street. That comes under the state highway department. I'm firmly opposed to the change on Fourth street. If parking on one side could be eliminated perhaps that might solve the problem."

A West Fourth street businessman agreed with him.

"This is the Lincoln highway," he said. "I don't see how we could have one-way traffic. Besides, it would confuse out-of-town people a great deal."

Another on West Fourth was skeptical, but agreed that something should be done.

"If the city would provide parking facilities, particularly for the out-of-town customers, that might help the traffic problem. Maybe we wouldn't need one-way traffic then. But certainly something must be done."

A Main street merchant said, "If it alleviates the bad traffic conditions, I think it would be a good thing. Something, certainly, should be done and anything that helps would be fine."

A business man near Sixth street said, "I'm in favor of it but only to Sixth street. If it goes to Olive street, there will be trouble. Olive street is a bad street and a turn there would be a heck of a lot of trouble. Besides Olive street would have to be paved. I think there should be one-side-of-the-street parking downtown. That might solve the trouble."

"I think when they start having one-way traffic," said a North Diamond street merchant, "It should be put on four streets each way. Just Diamond and Main won't help much. It should be Walnut and Mulberry streets, too."

Chinese Reds Cross Yangtze

LONDON — (INS) — Reuters reported today that Chinese Nationalist troops have evacuated a 60-mile stretch along the Yangtze river, and the communist forces are now only 40 miles north of Shanghai.

The British news agency, in a Nanking dispatch, said that the Nantung, Haimen and Chitung districts, north of the vital waterway, were evacuated.

Government forces were reported re-grouping on the south bank of the Yangtze.

City Council Gets 'Tough'

Resorting to a strong and rarely used procedure, city council last night ordered the sewer department to clean the storm sewer from the Park avenue east underpass to the Rocky Fork.

The action was unanimously approved by council on a motion by Councilman George Kyle who said "It's about time something was done out there."

He was backed by Councilman Fred Miller who pointed out that "it used to take two or three inches of rain before the underpass became flooded and impassable, but now it becomes flooded with only one inch of rain."

He said he believed that it had not been cleaned out for at least 10 years.

Kyle, when questioned whether the sewer department had been requested to clean the sewer prior to last night, and reminded of the severity of the resolution said,

"It's something that needs strong action."

Jurors Hear Damage Suit

A jury of seven men and five women was impaneled today to hear a $1,338 suit brought by the State Automobile and Mutual Insurance company against C. J. and Louis Stanchfield, of 293 Eighth avenue.

The insurance company said it paid that sum to Earl E. Bates of 494 Edgewood road, whose car was involved in a collision with the Stanchfields' truck.

The accident occurred on Lexington avenue, near Mendota street, Sept. 12, 1947. Attorneys Marriott and Freehafer represent the insurance company and Attorney Lydon H. Beam the defendants.

A $54,215 suit scheduled for hearing today has been settled, court attaches said, but no journal entry has been filed.

In this suit, Howard Butler, of Perrysville asked the sum from James R. Hazlett, of Lincoln Heights, claiming injuries as a result of being hit by a laundry truck driven by Hazlett.

Dad Rescues Family Amid Rolling Fire

Shower of Sparks Proves Neighbor's

SHELBY — An anxious father last night dashed up a smoked-filled street, burst into his home and rescued his wife and two children, only to discover the billows of smoke and hot sparks rolling down his roof were from a neighbor chimney and his house was not on fire.

Carl Yetzer, 59½ South Gamble street, spent a few excited moments as he drove up to his home and saw what appeared to be smoke and flames encircling the house. Parking his car he made a mad dash up the walk into his home and escorted his wife and children to the safety of the street while another neighbor used his phone to notify the fire department.

However, when the firefighters arrived upon the scene it was discovered an overheated chimney in the home of George Crall, 61 South Gamble street, was throwing off clouds of smoke and sparks and that the wind was carrying it over the Yetzer home, giving the appearance of a fire.

Two firemen remedied the situation by extinguishing the fire in the Crall furnace.

Strikes That Have Paralyzing Effect

WHILE Congress is considering labor legislation, in seeking a substitute for the Taft-Hartley law, an element of associated interest appears in the present plight of Philadelphians who are deprived of public transportation facilities as the result of a strike by 11,000 transit workers in that city of more than 2,000,000 population.

Bargaining conferences between representatives of management and the CIO Transport Workers union were ineffective in preventing the strike or in reaching a wage agreement afterward. Union demand was for a 20-cents-an-hour increase while the company offered only 3-cents an hour raise.

From this distance, of course, it cannot be judged to what extent either side is justified in its stand, but surely there should be some way of determining such issues without resort to total suspension of transportation facilities in Philadelphia, or any other city.

It should be the purpose of federal government, in establishing restraints on the excesses of organized labor, to not only strive for fairness to employers and employes alike, but also to have regard for the public interest, and to make sure that some practicable alternative to strikes be made into law for application in instances where health, safety and the continuous functioning of essential utilities are involved.

Gambling Harms Legitimate Business

EFFECTS of wide-open gambling on communities in which it is tolerated are vividly portrayed in an article in the current issue of Collier's magazine, with specific attention directed to immensity of the business developed by slot machines, revenues from which are now estimated at three billion dollars a year.

The article mentions action taken in New Albany, Ind., a city of 25,000 population, in which the Chamber of Commerce was disturbed by the number of bad checks turning up and found that the checks were issued by workers whose gambling losses outstripped their earnings.

Junior Chamber of Commerce members did some sleuthing and "were horrified to find many high school students among the players. Armed with this information they confronted a group of stunned parents at a PTA meeting." Organization of a Better Government committee followed and a cleanup of illegal gambling resulted.

Commenting in an entirely generalized way, Collier's suggests: "This article proves that only by alerting your Chamber of Commerce, as did New Albany, and by working independently of local government, can you be sure of ridding your community of its gambling menace. The police are often in too deep."

The article is illuminating in its revelation of the immense fortunes piled up by big-time operators of gambling rackets and is well worth reading in complete form by those who may be inclined to regard various forms of illegal commercialized gambling as a part of "personal liberty."

Mob Violence Follows Radio Hoax

TRAGIC RESULTS of that radio hoax in Quito, Ecuador, last Saturday night, go further to emphasize the need for careful guarding of the air channels to prevent irresponsible persons from throwing entire listening areas into a panic, as was done in this country 10 years ago by Orson Welles, who was then radio's "problem child".

The thriller used in Quito was the same as the one hit upon by Welles—"The War of Worlds", by H. G. Wells—and the fictional invasion from Mars was localized in the Quito district, with the same frightening effect as in the New Jersey locale, where people became wildly excited and several persons were reported to have died of fright.

Down in Ecuador, however, the angry reaction took a more serious turn and during the mob violence that followed a number of persons were killed, many others injured and the radio station wrecked, with property loss estimated at $350,000, including damage to a newspaper plant housed in the same building as the radio station.

This occurrence reminds of last week's happening in Willmar, Minn., where a radio announcer broadcast a weird story of wild animals escaping from a circus car and roaming around the streets. The townspeople were badly frightened but even when they learned it was all a "joke" they restrained themselves to the extent of not doing violence to the perpetrator—not even insisting that he be taken off the air, it appears. Such episodes tend to show that "freedom of speech" cannot be safely entrusted to those who lack the guidance of common sense in exercising it.

More Miles Per Gallon, Maybe

INSTANT attention of any motorist can be won by suggesting that there is a way to get forty per cent more miles of travel from a gallon of gasoline. Engine designers and fuel chemists have that figure in mind as a goal. They think that by collaboration, by making engines and fuels to fit each other, the goal can be reached.

If and when it should be done, however, the motorist probably would not get much bonus in the way of cheaper travel. Research is being done with high-octane fuels, which now cost more than the gasolines ordinarily used in automobiles and probably would continue to do so.

The big advantages would be in the use of small, lighter engines and in conservation of the total supply of fuel, so that the reserves of petroleum would last longer. That is important to the individual as well as to the motor car and petroleum industries. The motorist would have an immediate advantage, too: he would have to stop less often for gasoline.

GALBRAITH, Harvard Economics Professor: "The (Marshall Plan) will have been a brilliant success if it helps get western Europe by the next four years without disorder, if it helps secure the position of moderate governments, and if it helps achieve for Europeans the promise of a decent and improving standard of life."

DeWitt Mackenzie's Column

Education Expanded By World Conflict

ONE of the striking developments of the post-war period is the increased knowledge of world affairs possessed by the average citizen of the United States and other democracies.

I've been encountering this phenomenon both at home and abroad, in my wide correspondence and through travel. And it isn't alone the grown-ups who are posted on world events.

Your secondary school students are quite prepared these days to discuss foreign affairs. That fact speaks well not only for scholastic instruction but for home influence.

The global war of course has been partly responsible for this change. Our fighting men have been sent to the four corners of the earth. Not only have we had to learn about the outside world in order to keep track of them, but they have brought home to us much that is new.

However, most of our newfound education comes from another and paradoxical source. That is bolshevism, which has stepped out of the dark ages in a new guise and is making aggression against the rest of the world.

Did you ever stop to think how greatly our lives are affected by this red world revolution?

We live in a state of constant suspense. Spies and fifth columnists are working among us, aiming at the overthrow of our government.

The high cost of living is due in part to the unsettled conditions of the world. Our taxes are swollen to defray expenses for defense against the red aggression. We have to maintain a great army, navy and airforce because of the bolshevist menace.

* * *

Wealth Is Spread Far.

OUR WEALTH is being poured out to help many nations defend themselves against the red plague. There's aid for China, aid for Turkey, aid for Greece, aid for all western Europe through the Marshall Plan which Russia is trying her best to disrupt.

We even make a special contribution to maintain the United Nations which the Muscovites use as a red sounding board for propaganda.

So in one way and another our lives are affected by red aggression. Small wonder, then, that most citizens of the democracies should be making it their business to study developments and personalities involved in this cold war.

Thus it is that even young students have come to know the outstanding facts and personalities on both sides of the conflict.

Of course not everybody has been able to place a correct interpretation on all the facts which they have absorbed. But by and large America knows the truth about the menace of bolshevism and how it must be handled.

That is so of Europe, too. Indeed, such wretched slave-states as Czechoslovakia and Poland and Hungary are learning from cruel experience what communism means. The rest of us are lucky that we can learn by observation.

It's a tough school we are attending, but we are acquiring knowledge fast. We are moving fast in education.

Washington Calling

Framing New Labor Bill

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN A SMALL, hot, crowded room the waspish voices go on as the witness sits penned in by close-pressed rows of spectators. Outside is a long file of citizens waiting patiently for a seat to be vacant.

This is the hearing on the new labor legislation that will come out of the 81st Congress. It vitally affects every citizen no matter what his calling or trade or lack of one, since this whole matter of umpiring the process of collective bargaining is directly related to the role government plays in our lives.

Yet, it sometimes seems that Congress is going about finding a reasonable solution in the most backhanded sort of way. Political partisanship has produced quarrels and name-calling.

The Republican minority accuses the Democratic majority of trying to shut off the hearings in response to the dictate of the CIO.

That is one reason for the tension in the crowded court room. The Republicans complain, and with considerable reason, that cutting off the hearings arbitrarily will prevent a full analysis of the whole issue.

Yet, in spite of the unhappy approach, the final legislation is likely to represent a fair balance between freedom of action and essential regulation. The balance of power rests, fortunately, with two men—Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and Sen. Irving Ives of New York.

As they did during the long debate leading to enactment of the Taft-Hartley Act, Senators Morse and Ives are working closely together. They shortly may put in a complete new measure as a substitute for the administration bill. If they do not follow this strategy, they will offer individual substitute amendments for each administration provision.

* * *

Power of Injunction.

DEMOCRATIC leaders will have to think a long time before rejecting the Morse-Ives compromise. In order to counter the votes of southern Democrats certain to favor the sterner Taft-Hartley requirements, the Democrats must enlist the middle-ground Republicans who are likely to be with Senators Morse and Ives.

Both Morse and Ives are opposed to giving the federal courts power to enjoin a union from calling a strike, as can be done now under the Taft-Hartley Act. They both feel strongly that this violates a fundamental right.

Senator Ives favors a measure patterned after the Railway Labor Act, with a provision for a fact-finding board to look into the causes of a dispute. During a specified period, while the board was reaching its conclusion, both sides to the dispute would refrain from any action.

In Senator Ives' view much of the debate over the powers of the President to seek an injunction in the event of a national emergency produced by a strike is purely academic.

As he sensibly points out, such an emergency calls almost inevitably for action by Congress.

What happened in the emergency produced by the railway strike of May, 1946, is a good example. As the movement of goods and supplies slowed to a standstill, President Truman rushed up to Capitol Hill to ask for emergency powers so sweeping that many, and particularly the heads of railway labor, were shocked and angered. Before Congress could act, the strike was called off.

Sen. Robert A. Taft argues that the disputed law, which bears his name, makes it possible through the power of injunction to prevent a nation-wide strike and thereby prevent the emergency. This was sharply challenged by Senator Morse during the hearings.

The latter pointed out that the coal strike continued for eight days after the injunction was issued in Washington. John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers were fined. But no one went to jail and, therefore, the injunction process in its ultimate application was not tested.

Resent Wobbling On Indonesian Policy

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—State department officials have certainly put themselves on the spot in the Senate. They have let a group of Republican senators pick up the state department's own policy on Indonesia and demand that it can be carried out.

This can be the first serious foreign-affairs rift of the new Truman administration.

What makes things embarrassing for the state department is that its own delegates to the United Nations took the lead in opposing Dutch aggression against Indonesia.

The Indonesian statement of Dr. Philip Jessup, U.S. delegate to the UN, was one of the most masterful ever delivered. It set an example to the world. Behind his forthright denunciation of Dutch aggression was the knowledge that once the peace machinery of the United Nations is weakened it will become as flabby as the old League of Nations.

And in Indonesia, the Dutch were just as brazen in thumbing their noses at UN peace efforts as the Jap warlords in Manchuria did at the League.

But after the state department took this fine public stand, several Democratic senators drafted a resolution supporting it and going one step further. They wanted to cut off Marshall Plan aid to Holland, which actually has financed the Dutch army in Indonesia. The ECA money received by Holland, they said was merely siphoned out to the South Pacific to pay the upkeep of Dutch aggression.

When the state department got wind of the resolution, however, Bob Lovett, then acting secretary of state, phoned majority leader Scott Lucas of Illinois, asking him to lay off. The resolution, he said, must be blocked.

* * *

GOP Grabs Ball.

LUCAS, somewhat against his better judgment, did so. Obediently, the Democratic senators pulled in their horns—on the promise that new Secretary of State Acheson would come up to the Senate and explain his view on the resolution.

Senator Lucas pointed out that Acheson had just become secretary of state and might not agree with retired Undersecretary Lovett, so it was only fair to hear him. Therefore the Democratic senators waited—and waited—and waited some more. Acheson did not show.

Finally, state department counselor Chip Bohlen telephoned to say that Secretary Acheson would not come at all. Instead, he, Bohlen, offered to explain things to the senators.

By this time, the senators were hopping mad. When a dozen leading Democratic senators ask for views of the secretary of state it is customary for him to appear before them.

And when they are courteous enough to hold up a resolution at his request, his appearance is considered mandatory. That was why Democratic senators refused to hear Bohlen, said they would hear Acheson or no one.

While the Democrats were being obedient Democrats, however, the Republicans picked up the ball. They introduced a resolution identical with that prepared by the Democrats, supporting the state department's stand against the Dutch in Indonesia, but asking the state department really to carry out its words by cutting off the American ECA subsidy to the Dutch army.

The Republican senators who got behind the resolution are Bridges of New Hampshire, Brewster and Smith of Maine, Butler and Wherry of Nebraska, Baldwin of Connecticut, McCarthy of Wisconsin, Malone of Nevada, Langer of North Dakota, and Morse of Oregon.

They intend to make a major attack on the administration, charging the state department with delivering fine phrases before the United Nations while playing footsie with the Dutch aggressors under the UN table. And it looks as if they were right.

Gratitude Gifts.

WHAT different states are doing with their Gratitude Train gifts: New York City converted the veterans' center into a virtual museum, tastefully displayed French gifts in showcases. Thousands lined up to see them . . . Massachusetts will conduct an essay contest in high schools on French-American friendship, giving nonhistoric gifts as prizes to winners . . . Ohio will mount its 40-and-8 boxcar on wheels and tour it throughout the state . . . The mayor of Parkersburg, W. Va., offered to do the same in West Virginia, but some people in Charleston, the state capital, are demanding that it say there. (The French people want everyone in the state to see the boxcar and the gifts, if possible. Boston is placing the gifts on display in department-store windows prior to distribution . . . Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry will display the 40-and-8 boxcar for a month, together with the French gifts, after which they will be taken around the state . . . Some states have offered high schools a chance to display gifts, provided manual - training classes build proper glass cases for display.

'Economy' Hits Miami

By INEZ ROBB

MIAMI — Miami and her sister over-the-causeway, Miami Beach, may yet become the poor man's paradise. Poor, that is, compared with the Rockefellers or the Fords.

In this lush region, times are rapidly returning to normal—and how everybody hates it, everybody except the visiting firemen.

Not a single, hand-painted $200 necktie has crossed the counters along Lincoln Road, the highbinders' highway, this season. And night club impresarios complain that G-notes flew through the air with far greater ease even a short year ago than measly C-notes today.

In this vicinity, where the SRO sign has hung continuously for the past seven or eight years, there are even discreet "vacancy" legends abaft scattered hotels and apartment houses.

It is to be noted that the hired help is now semi-civil to the paying guest, a revolutionary state of affairs. It is even predicted that a year from now it may be possible to rent instead of buy a hotel room.

Naturally, all this is very depressing to merchants, hotel men, bookies, gamblers and concessionaires who are giving their all to make or break an easy dollar.

Despite the fact that this resort area still is equally dappled with sun and pari-mutuel tickets, the great bender is about over and aspirin in order.

* * *

Still Plenty of Money.

IT SEEMS apparent that Miami and Miami Beach, which have been cavorting for several years like a maharajah on a marijuana jag, are going to have to close ranks and lower their sights and standards to those of the ordinary American millionaire or even the average good time Charlie with a trunk rather than a truck full of money.

The suckers are still biting, but not in such big mouthfuls. And the Lincoln Road merchants, who can't get rid of those hand-painted ties and those woven gold bathing suits, are so desperate to wriggle off the hook themselves that they are trying to find a legal way out of their old iron-clad agreement never to give a sucker a break.

They are, in fact, trying to find a way to hold a mid-season fire sale to get rid of all the expensive merchandise now burning a hole in their inventories. The old iron-clad agreement among these merchants forbids any kind of sale until the season is over around the end of March.

The Lincoln Road Merchants association is even outlining a national campaign for next year to persuade tourists it doesn't cost any more to shop there than your right arm. Formerly, it cost both arms.

I don't think it takes a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter born with a veil to predict that the Greater Miami area, before another season rolls round, will flood the nation with persuasive propaganda proving that even the poor and middlin' rich millionaire can be happy here.

* * *

Lured By Sunshine.

OF COURSE, this area has been on such a brannigan during and since the war that it is hard for it to realize that there are people who can be happy on $100 a day.

In hard fact, Miami and Miami Beach are enjoying a wonderful season. In point of numbers, despite the few "vacancy" signs, there are more tourists in the area this season than ever before. This is a "poor" season only by comparison.

It is true that to date no one has given a hat-check girl a $1,000 bill as a token of esteem, a more or less common occurrence during other years.

The girls will accept 25-cents as ransom for a hat (a standard fee in New York), but if the man wants to be treated as anything other than a loathsome termite, he'd better drop 50-cents in the plate or—better still—a dollar bill.

Tourists are not spending as much money this season as in the immediate past. But under any circumstances, this would be a bluesky season by comparison with pre-war winters.

The whole set-up looks as rich as the inside of a gravy-boat to me.

If Miami and Miami Beach can only learn to live on a million rather than a billion dollars a year, the season is going to be good as long as the sun holds out. Because this district is going to be good as long as the sun shines bright on my old Floridian home.

And the guys with the telescopes say the sun is good for several million more light years.

All there is to the Robert Mitchum story is summed up by Harold Heffernan in his letter from Hollywood: "He has never been quite able to master his sudden elevation to fame and fortune."

Report On Grassroots

By CALVIN A. BYERS

QUIETLY but mightily, something is happening that will change our world. I must report what I have seen, out among the "grass roots." I suspect there is no other news so important as news of new life and growth.

It was the elders that grow along our gravel road that I noticed first . . . it seems each week there is a perceptible growth in the girth of each stem. The trunks of small orchard trees are a whole inch larger in circumference than they were last fall. I kicked about the leaves that lodged in the grass and to my amazement pulled clear a long tender pink bramble root. Sharp and pointed it was, at the growing end, and so brittle it broke in my fingers, like a new string bean. The taste was insipid but the pleasant odor of earth and leaves clung to it.

I was amazed at the distance it was fastened to the soil by many opposing fibrous rootlets. I felt the strange life within it as I stripped it through my hands. It challenged me.

Finally I covered the whole stem again with its blanket of sod and leaves, pressed my foot upon it and left it to enjoy more growth.

I hoped with the poet, that "every plant enjoys the breath it breathes," and considered what great joys humankind may miss by ignoring the world of plants and flowers and trees—as much alive as we are.

After the recent rains I stepped upon the thick carpet of grass roots and loved to hear it sop and soak as if it still were thirsty. Grass roots are measured by uncounted thousands in every square foot of sod, laid close like a piece of woven cloth that deepens and spreads over wounded places of the earth. Amazing persistent richness that is alive and seems immortal.

The winter his been comparatively mild. Frequent sunny days, plentiful rains, an occasional snow blanket. All living roots have been making the best of it . . . creeping, extending, enlarging, stretching toward the beginning of another fruiting season.

Wheat roots are a mesh under all the field, roots of berries and brambles mat the slope—when I kicked the leaves away, the tender yellow shoots of narcissus were four inches high. I smiled, and covered them again, to wait for Easter.

For Easter does not come all at once, it is the culmination of growth. And there is joyous challenge everywhere among the grass roots for men of faith.

Brothers Fined In Tree Thefts

Sandusky Men Plead Guilty

Dominic and Albert Fresch, brothers, of Sandusky, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to a charge of illegal cutting of timber and were fined $50 and costs each and were given 30-day suspended jail sentences.

The men were charged with cutting Christmas trees from a farm owned by Philip Schmutzler, near Adario on Dec. 6.

There were several postponements of the case. Today, the charge was reduced to the misdemeanor classification from the felony classification and the pair pleaded guilty.

They were arrested after the sheriff's office found a delivery bill, made out to their father, at the scene of the theft.

In other cases, Burl Fraley, 680 McPherson street, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail for operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was revoked.

Richard Dailey, 433 South Diamond street, was fined $25 and costs for indecent exposure.

Virgil Hoyman, of Massillon, paid $10 and costs for failing to yield the right-of-way.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The Ohio Bell Telephone company's request for a nine per cent increase in rates, to yield eight and a half million more dollars in annual revenue, was in the lap of the State Utilities commission today.

Final oral arguments in the case snapped open and shut yesterday like a woman's pocketbook and the commission took the matter under advisement.

Ohio Bell's general counsel, Ashley M. Van Duzer, claimed the present situation was "an emergency," because his firm was going to have to stop borrowing from American Telephone and Telegraph, its parent company.

Maurice Gilbert, representing the city of Dayton; Assistant Akron Law Director Harold Parker, and Robert Morgan, assistant Cleveland law director, said this was not true.

Two heart-shaped cakes decorated the table when lunch was served at a late hour. Each cake had the names of one couple.

Miss Stahl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Stahl, 403 Sherman place, and Mr. Byers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Byers sr., 647 West Third street.

ANY day that has a special significance offers an excuse for a social gathering. Washington's Birthday is no exception and it affords an opportunity for pretty table decorations and attractive food decorations. Teenagers particularly like to entertain on holidays and part of the fun is the planning of their own decorative schemes and refreshments.

Simple food is always best. Sandwiches, or one hot dish and a layer cake, cherry trimmed, served with a good beverage will suffice. The cake and drinks alone may do.

Delicious and healthful drinks can be produced quickly and with ease if the refrigerator is well stocked with pale dry ginger ale and cannet fruit juices. Ginger ale combines perfectly and adds a delicious tang to almost any fruit juice. Half and half is a good rule to follow in figuring proportions for fruit juice and ginger ale mixtures. Canned fruits, mashed or sieved, and their syrups can be used in delightful drinks, too, as well as jams and jellies. Here's one that depends on jam for its lovely color and on the ginger ale for sparkle and zip.

CHERRY GINGER SPARKLE

Two tablespoons cherry jam
¼ cup milk
Pale dry gingerale.

Combine jam and milk; beat. Pour into tall glass and fill glass with pale dry ginger ale. Milk and ginger ale should be very cold. Serves 1.

CHERRY RIPE

1 cup canned black cherries, chopped
Few drops almond extract
1 egg white
2 teaspoons sugar
Nutmeg
Pale dry ginger ale

Combine pitted chopped cherries and almond extract. Beat egg white and sugar together and fold in cherry mixture. Divide into 4 glasses. Fill glasses with ice cold pale dry ginger ale. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Serves 4.

Horoscope

For Wednesday, February 16

A MOST propitious design of planetary influences gives encouragement to the pursuit of desired plans, propositions or programs, affecting the business, financial, social, home and romantic situation, in which much accomplishment is shown. The talents, mentality, feelings and skills are happily fortified, giving encouragement to change, new agreements, travel, fresh ties, with much gratification. However, there are attractions with power to swerve from the progressive and forthright state of affairs, with undertones not to be trusted or "swallowed." Be realistic.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may anticipate a year in which important agreements and decisions may come up for final settlement, in which shrewd, sagacious and ambitious propositions or objectives demand forthright and honest agreements. There may be change, travel, fresh contacts or agreements, and such demand clear insight, right principles and side-stepping certain alluring or tacit commitments which could prove confusing, complicating and dangerous to desired objectives. Keep alert to dubious contacts or associations, in which feelings rather than reason hold sway.

Red Conspiracy In the U.S.A.

Chambers Backs Facts Cited By Miss Bentley

17th Article in a Series
By ROBERT E. STRIPLING
(Edited by Bob Considine)

Whittaker Chambers is a quiet, studious, flabby, pipe-puffing man who tried sporadically for 10 years to tell his story of the communist conspiracy against the United States to the proper authorities.

Eventually, he gave up in disgust and probably would still be an obscure editor of Time magazine today if the House un-American Activities committee had not called him, more or less by chance.

I first became interested in Chambers without knowing his name. In the spring of 1948, while inquiring into the record of Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, I made an effort to establish the relationship between Condon and Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, a former government economist accused by Elizabeth Bentley of heading one of the communist spy rings working in Washington.

One day Ed Nellor, Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Sun asked me what I knew about a senior editor of Time who lived on a farm at Westminster, Md., and was to be questioned by a N. Y. grand jury. Nellor had inquired about him at the Justice department, but had been asked to "lay off."

I was interested in that jury's findings, for I knew it was hearing Silvermaster. I found that the farmer-editor's name was Chambers, and, thinking he might supply some needed information, I dispatched two investigators to Time's New York office to question him.

They returned empty-handed. Chambers did not know Silvermaster, nor did he know Condon. However, he told my men that he had been a communist and once, years before, had served as a courier between an underground apparatus in Washington and the party's New York headquarters.

He added that he had told all this to Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle and later to the FBI when he broke with communism, but that nothing had come of his revelations. He did not wish to appear before the committee, he said.

I forgot him.

But the startling testimony which Miss Bentley gave during her appearance before the committee on July 31, 1948, and the denials of those named and the blasts the committee received from liberals and left-wingers, made it imperative that we get some kind of corroborating witness on our stand. The Justice department, I recalled moodily, had warned us that there were none.

I remembered Chambers, and subpoenaed him. Miss Bentley's story plainly was too hard to believe, I agreed. But if Chambers told us of his own work as a courier perhaps there would be links connecting his bygone activities with the later ones outlined by Miss Bentley.

The subpoena on Chambers, once served, gave me additional worry I felt that Henry Luce would be indignant. His magazine had been critical of the committee and especially of Rep. Rankin. Calling one of his editors, I guessed, would provoke fresh rebukes.

CHAMBERS APPEARS

But on the appointed day, August 3, 1948, Chambers walked into my office accompanied by Frank McNaughton, of the Washington bureau of Time. McNaughton had been anti-committee for a long time, but it had not interfered with our friendship.

Chambers shook hands solemnly when we were introduced, then I turned to McNaughton and said, "Okay, Frank, what's the pitch? Why can't he testify?"

"He's ready," McNaughton answered, to my surprise. "He has a statement he'd like you to read." It was three pages of pure dynamite, composed in the man's careful prose. This is part of what he had written and later read into the committee's record:

"Almost exactly nine years ago—that is, two days after Hitler and Stalin signed their pact—I went to Washington and reported to the authorities what I knew about the infiltration of the United States government by communists.

"I had joined the communist Party in 1924. No one recruited me. I had become convinced that the society in which we live, western civilization, had reached a crisis, of which the first world war was the military expression, and that it was doomed to collapse or resort to barbarism. I felt that, as an intelligent man, I must do something. In the writings of Karl Marx I thought that I had found the explanation of the historical and economic causes. In the writings of Lenin I thought I had found the answer to the question, what to do?

"In 1937 I repudiated Marx' doctrines and Lenin's tactics.

"For a year I lived in hiding, sleeping by day and watching through the night with a gun or revolver within easy reach. That was what underground communism could do to one man in the peaceful United States in the year 1938.

"It is 10 years since I broke away from the communist party. During that decade I have sought to live an industrious and God-fearing life. At the same time I have fought communism constantly by act and written word. I am proud to appear before this committee.

The committee heard Chambers briefly in closed session, but after fifteen minutes of his story one of the members interrupted.

"Hell," said the member, "why is this in executive session? This should be in the open."

We moved to the caucus room of the old House Office building and began an unforgettable day.

(TOMORROW: Stripling makes his own searching analysis of the character and career of Whittaker Chambers.)

NKP Lays Off 1,087 Workers

CLEVELAND — (UP) — The Nickel Plate railroad today announced it will lay off 1,087 workers in four cities on Wednesday.

A spokesman said the layoffs are necessary because of a "decline in business and fall-offs in car loadings."

The layoffs start Wednesday in the locomotive and freight shops in Conneaut and Lima, O., Frankfort, Ind., and Stony Island, Ill. The NKP spokesman said the shops would reopen on March 1.
